MYSTERY STAINS FOUND IN HOME OF PASTOR

MARKS MAY GIVE CLUE IN MURDER

Tissue and Finger Prints Discovered in Dwelling
EXPERTS CONTINUE TESTS

Animals Burned in Helping Solve Furnace Death

COLUMBUS — (By Associated Press) — A bit of tissue that may have been scraped from the body of a human, and dark stains which may be blood spots were found in the parsonage of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, in Bexley, today by County Prosecutor John R. King and assistants who are seeking to solve the mysterious death of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, 51, whose body, practically cremated, was found in the furnace of the house a week ago by her husband, the Rev. C. C. Sheatsley.

Authorities who today were making a minute examination of the interior of the dwelling, also discovered a number of finger marks.

This afternoon experiments by which authorities expect to show that carbon-monoxide gas would kill a breathing animal within the furnace will be conducted, King said. Guinea pigs will be placed in the fire-box.

The guinea pig experiment is expected to bear out the report of chemist C. F. Long, that Mrs. Sheatsley did not breathe after her body entered the furnace. Long came to this conclusion after analytical examination of blood taken from the victim's hand failed to reveal any trace of carbon-monoxide poisoning. Had she breathed, he contends, her blood would have become saturated with the poison.

The bit of tissue was found on a step leading to the cellar, and the supposed blood stains were found on the asbestos wrapping of the furnace. Just above the furnace door, King said, both specimens will be examined by chemist Long and Dr. H. M. Prandage, a pathologist, in an effort to determine if they came from the body of a human being.

SUPPORTS THEORY

King this morning said he was more than convinced that ever since Mrs. Sheatsley did not enter the furnace voluntarily. Developments have proved to him conclusively, he said, that she did not commit suicide, after becoming violently insane, which is the expressed conviction of the Rev. C. C. Sheatsley.

Following "the new trial" Prosecutor King and detectives seeking solution of the woman's death today redoubled their efforts.

Delaying it would be premature to make known the nature of his discoveries at this time, King said he was encouraged by his discoveries.

A resolution adopted yesterday by members of the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley's congregation contained a prayer for divine guidance that the real culprit in the terrible case will be discovered and brought to justice.

A declaration of "unqualified confidence in the integrity and character" of Rev. Mr. Sheatsley was contained in the resolution as well as an expression of sympathy for the bereaved and his family.

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley last Wednesday told King he was of the opinion that his wife committed suicide by casting herself into the furnace after becoming violently insane. He has not admitted to authorities a reversal of his conviction, although Prosecutor King and others working on the case declare they are confident they will not commit suicide. The pastor has as a basis for his conviction that she did not commit suicide, the report of chemist C. F. Long, which shows that she did not breathe after her body entered the fire-box.

All of the Sheatsley family, including the minister and his four children, will not be available to the prosecutor in his investigation until Thursday. The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley, in a telephone conversation from Paris, yesterday said they will not return here until then. Previously they had planned to come today.

Among those expected to be examined today by the prosecutor is Simon A. Singer, a neighbor of the Sheatsley family, who was called in by the minister after his wife's body was found in the furnace.

CONTRACTORS ORDERED TO HURRY WORK

Haddad-Kairai Construction Co. Notified to Complete Important Links Before Starting on Other Parts of Contract

Orders to the Haddad-Kairai Construction Co. to complete all outstanding jobs on the Jones trunk line sewer before work is started along other sections of the $400,000 project were issued Monday morning by City Manager C. A. Bingham.

Since the contract was let here last summer after the Jones Construction Co. had defaulted after finishing less than half of the work, the Haddad-Kairai Co. has been working at six different spots along the district sewer.

Work has been completed at S. Metcalf-st bridge along the Ottawa river, at the Baxter-st pumping station and at the river bridge at High-st.

At three locations work is incomplete and failure of the company to speed up the work has caused the blockade of certain streets, or partial blockade, according to Manager Bingham, who has instructed the company to finish the work at Lover's lane, between Market-st and Bellefontaine-av. at Market-st bridge and at Elm-st overhead.

Manager Bingham demands that before the advent of winter weather that the company complete the three outstanding jobs before work is started at any other locations as rainy weather and snowfall will interfere with the work and he doesn't want any sections of the city closed unless absolutely necessary.

CITIZENS PROTECTED

Protection of the taxpayers in making certain that each job will be completed and not the "easy pickings" taken out by the company comprises the basis for the city manager's demands on the company.

While the possibility that the Haddad-Kairai Co. may default on the job is very remote and not even considered at city hall, the experience gained by officials when the Jones Co. defaulted and left officials holding "the bag" with a $170,000 loss to be contested in court, has taught them a lesson and in the future work will be completed as it proceeds.

When the contract was let to Haddad-Kairai Co., a 100 percent bond demanded by the city as a protective measure to prevent any possible repetition of the Jones default muddle protects the city and assures completion of the project in event the present contractors default.

Less than two-thirds of the Haddad-Kairai contract is completed. The easy workings are said to have been finished and the future excavations consist of rock bound earth and difficult tunneling jobs, which will require nearly six or eight months to complete.

ALLIANCE, O.—Everett D. Hall, 36, Canton newspaper man is thought to have been fatally injured with a fractured spine sustained early Sunday morning when his car left the slippery brick highway seven miles south of here.

Fred Fox, 23, sustained a shattered leg above the knee, a badly injured head and other minor injuries while H. C. Wandle, 24, escaped with slight injuries. The three, from Canton, were delivering Sunday papers to out-of-town dealers. All are in the hospital here.

BIBLE FOUND IN AUTO
ABANDONED ALONG ROAD

An abandoned auto containing a violin, a Bible and a Sabbath school leaflet was recovered by Deputy Sheriff Al. Smith in the Dixie highway near the Waldorf school house north of Lima Sunday night. It was towed into the city. So far the owners have not been located. The license on the car indicate it may belong to someone in Bluffton.

DROPS DEAD

John Simmons, formerly of Lima, dropped dead Monday at his home at Grass Lake, Mich. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made. Emmett Simmons, S. Main-st, is a brother.

"STOP" SIGN IS OVER RUN BY MOTORIST

Man and Wife Knocked to Pavement and Hurt
DRIVER IS UNIDENTIFIED

Three persons were injured in two automobile accidents Sunday night about 8:30 p. m. Two automobiles collided on the West-street-rd, injuring a woman, while an unidentified man failed to observe a "Stop" sign at the Y. M. C. A. corner and struck a man and woman.

Mrs. Dora Fisher, of Columbus Grove, was cut and bruised about the head and arms when an automobile which her husband was driving collided with an auto driven by Chester Sykes, of 920 W. Kibby-st, between O'Connell-st and Robb-av in West-st.

According to a report of the accident which has been filed at police headquarters, Sykes attempted to pass another car and struck Fisher's machine.

TWO HURT

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Malone sustained slight injuries when they were knocked to the pavement by an automobile driven by an unidentified man at West and Spring-sts. Mrs. Malone was bruised about the head and arm and Malone's knee was injured.

Witnesses of the accident assert that the driver, whose identity remains a mystery, overran a "stop" sign.

George Buttl, of 551 1-2 S. Main-st, complained to police Sunday night that an unknown driver crashed into the rear of his machine at Market and Jackson-sts and fled.

John Fohle, 410 E. Eureka-st, filed a complaint at police headquarters that while his wife was driving her car in the Public-sq. Sunday night, another motorist ran into and damaged the rear of the automobile and drove away.

W. S. Idle, 623 1-2 N. Main-st, while driving in the Public-sq. Sunday night was struck by an automobile driven by Carl Arthur, of St. Johns. His machine was slightly damaged.

J. B. Roberts, of Spencerville, ran into and demolished the safety island at the Lima Trust Co. corner of the Public-sq. Sunday evening.

LAST RITES SAID FOR MRS. FLORENCE HARDING

Crowds Throng Home City of President's Widow
NOTABLES AT SERVICE
Flags at Half Mast in Woman's Honor

MARION, O. — (By Associated Press) — One of the first to pass the bier of Mrs. Florence Harding today was "Uncle Charles", Patton, keeper of the White House grounds during the Harding administration.

Dr. George T. Harding, the late president's father, also viewed the body.

Mrs. Harding was dressed entirely in white. Her feet were encased in white satin slippers with rhinestone and pearl buckles.

Flowers bearing the card of President and Mrs. Coolidge were among the many floral pieces.

MARION, O. — (By Associated Press) — Today this city, which has been host to thousands of visitors since the days when Warren G. Harding was a candidate for president, is preparing for the last scene in the life of the Hardings.

Thousands thronged Marion streets in 1920 when the "front porch" campaign was in full swing. They came to avow their allegiance to the Republican presidential candidate.

Again in 1921 they trooped over frozen stones of the Harding front yard when Mr. and Mrs. Harding bid their neighbors and friends farewell as they departed for the inauguration ceremonies in Washington.

July 4th, 1922, the city swarmed once more. This time it was President and Mrs. Harding's homecoming to greet old friends and help celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of Marion.

On a hot August day in 1923 these same crowds returned. This time to stand in long silent lines, with whispered talk and a great pall over all. They were burying President Harding. That day saw the erect figure of a woman black with head bowed and lips tightly drawn slowly follow the body of her husband to its entombment.

Just a month ago crowds again were here. It was the funeral of Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, the man who faithfully had watched over the health of the Hardings—a lifetime friend of the family. At his grave stood the erect figure of Mrs. Harding. As the casket was lowered she stepped forward and silently looked down. A prayer seemed on her lips.

Today they are burying Mrs. Harding and Marion is mourning the loss of a friend and neighbor.

Evidences of sorrow are on every hand. Shop windows display only the black-draped picture of Mrs. Harding. Flags are at half mast. Up and down Main-st are large banners of black. The crowds are hushed as in 1922.

Funeral services this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mrs. Harding's church — Epworth M. (Methodist) Episcopal — were as the Hardings lived—plain and simple. The Columbus Republican Club, which has sung for the Hardings during all their political career and entertained White House visitors again will sing Mrs. Harding's favorite song, "The Perfect Day."

DELAY IN TAX COLLECTION IS VERY SERIOUS

Sinking Fund Requirements, Salary Demands, Unpaid Bills and General Operation Periled by Lack Of Money at Opening of New Fiscal Year

Both the City Commission and the Board of Education are facing a real problem in operation following the definite announcement from the offices of County Auditor C. R. Phillips and County Treasurer Harry Botkins that tax collections for the City of Lima will be delayed until early in 1925 instead of December of this year.

The exact situation as it presents itself before each of the bodies is as follows:

With schools of the city facing temporary bankruptcy, due to proper that taxes will not be available until Feb. 1, members of the Lima board of education sought legal advice on how to proceed Monday.

An opinion was asked from Paul T. Landis, city solicitor and counsel for the school board, L. F. Jenkins, secretary announced Monday.

Landis will look into the law governing the situation and promised to advise the board late in the day as to the most advisable course.

If possible the board will seek temporary aid from banks in the city, rather than make an application to the state department of education for loans to tide them over.

If advances can be made legally by the school bankers, to tide the board three January and February, it will eliminate the necessity of extending red tape required to put thru a state loan.

CURRENT NEEDS

The board has sufficient money to operate up to and including Jan. 1. The money Jenkins said includes the usual two weeks' advance salary paid to the teachers prior to Christmas each year.

But after Jan. 1, there will be no money.

Approximately $200,000 is needed to operate and pay off obligations which will fall due during the first two months of the year.

Bonds for $50,000 will be due and must be retired shortly after Jan. 1. The board is also obligated to pay sums aggregating $75,000 to contractors during the first sixty days of the year. It may be possible to hold up some of the money, however, and the builders are in some instances a long ways behind with their work.

Teachers salaries for the two months are another large item, amounting to thousands of dollars that will have to be met.

Jenkins gave his opinion that the board will have no trouble in finding money to get thru the two months.

Under provisions of the law, a local board, without money to operate can draw on the state, and the amount is assessed as a special tax against the district.

Should this turn of affairs come to pass, Chaplin will be in the position of having to pay because of the non-payment of taxes already in force.

Rumor Says
Chaplin On Wedding Trip

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — (By Associated Press) — Charles Chaplin, motion picture comedian, reported in Mexico City dispatches an expected at Guaymas, a Mexican west coast port, to marry Lily Grey, his young leading woman, passed the time last night. Chaplin was aboard a Southern Pacific train for Nogales, where his car will be switched a train for Guaymas.

Chaplin refused to discuss reports that he was to marry Lily Grey, but admitted he was going to Mexico. Mrs. Grey has been in the Mexican city on "location" for the last several days. Chaplin's departure from Los Angeles late yesterday was not preceded by publicity. It was at his own residence, where the Mexico City report was first made, entirely unpublicized, it was pointed out the comedian had been in Los Angeles the day previous and no doubt still was "down with it" in Los Angeles.

However, W. E. Clegg, grandfather of Miss Grey gave out information that he had accompanied Chaplin to the train. He declined to state whether Miss Grey and Chaplin were engaged.

Douglas Fairbanks called Chaplin's departure for Guaymas a "business trip," as did others who knew the comedian had planned to leave for Mexico.

Train schedules indicated that, whatever might be the purpose of Chaplin's trip, it could not be accomplished today.

Acute financial crisis faces Lima at the beginning of 1925 with city officials unable to offer any solution toward meeting the payroll of various departments or replenishing the drained treasury. The situation is the worst in the history of Lima with City Manager C. A. Bingham outspoken in his declaration "that the city will be in a heap of a shape."

Failure of county officials to expedite the property revaluation so that relief from taxation sources could be obtained as the effect of the new year constitutes the source of the city's financial work along with the also impression obtained that the taxation ratio would be on a $100,000,000 valuation instead of the $80,000,000 announced by county officials.

Unless an advance draw of at least $400,000 from the county is received the city's condition will assume an aspect where bankers will be required to assume the aid or other means devised to borrow funds until such relief comes from the county. The situation for the early part of the year is as follows:

MANY NEEDS

One—Approximately $400,000 will be required by the sinking fund to meet maturing bonds.

Two—Payroll of the safety service departments and other departments will have to be met, or the city faced with the prospect of reducing the personnel.

Three—Debt of approximately $58,000 contracted during 1924 to pay policemen and firemen is outstanding. While no date has been set for payment of this debt the city wished to expedite payment.

Four—Stack of unpaid bills fill the city auditor's office. Probability exists that many of these are to be carried over into 1925, adding additional expense for the year.

That city officials are distressed over the future financial outlook is an open secret with commissioners adverse to predicting just what measures must be adopted for operation of the city.

Vague intimations are made of a darkened city by the disconnection of street lights, cutting to the bone of different departments, closing of district stations and other drastic moves to keep the city within its bounds.

TWO COMPLICATIONS

Two distinct complications comprise the basis for anxiety under which the city officials are laboring:

The city's budget request of approximately $900,000 was sliced to $800,000 by the county budget commission on a revised valuation of approximately $80,000,000. The valuation for 1924 was $51,000,000.

County Treasurer Harry Botkins announces that county tax collection funds will not be available until Feb. 1 at the earliest with the possibility that relief cannot be obtained until the latter part of the month to meet the maturing bonds, $50,000 of which fall due in February.

Possibility that tax collection at the court house may be postponed to Jan. 20, as announced by Treasurer Botkins, is taken by city officials as an indication that the county will be relieved from the county until February 1st.

Delay by the county in collection of taxes will also delay collection of special assessments by the city treasurer as an understanding exists between both of them that collection are to be simultaneous. The practice, if carried thru this year and so far no change has been authorized, will mean the holding up of collections on approximately 100 streets paved within the past year or two.

This collection goes to the sinking fund for retirement of bonds and if held up will make the situation more acute.

"It is not a question of what will we do," Manager Bingham said, "but a condition of having the money and having it at the earliest time after first of the year."

MOTORISTS ARE FINED

$30 Payment Assessed Against Speeding Driver

OTHERS FACE COURT

Costs Only Collected Against "Stop" Law Violators

After administering a severe reprimand and expressing sorrow that the law would not permit him to make the penalty more severe, Judge Neal Poling Monday morning fined Leslie Taylor, of 33 S. West st., $30 and costs on charges of speeding and overrunning "stop" signs.

"There's one little girl in the hospital now and a number of other persons are suffering from severe injuries simply because a few fellows like you couldn't stop at street intersections during the last few days," Poling told Taylor.

Taylor was arrested by Police Inspector George Strick when he was speeding in one of the principal streets of the city. Strick told the court that Taylor was pursuing the defendant he speeded up to get out of an hour, and after that was afraid to look at the speedometer. The class lasted for several miles.

Rev. Warren L. Stevens, 1922 Fawcett, and Walt Farmer, 1212 E. 1st, paid costs and had $5 fines suspended when they pleaded guilty to "failure to stop."

Rev. Stevens and Farmer, a member of his congregation, said by side in the court and entered pleas of guilty.

Stevens and Farmer both expressed sorrow for violating the law, and upheld the officer who made the arrest in each case.

H. H. Kenschburg, of 1170 Brice, paid costs and had a $5 fine suspended and M. W. Campbell pleaded not guilty, when both were arraigned on charges of overrunning "stop" signs.

STAINS PROBED IN MURDER

Sheatsley's charred remains were found last Monday afternoon in the pathologist's today burned the bodies of two Guinea pigs, hoping thru this experiment to learn something of the circumstances of Mrs. Sheatsley's death.

TROWN IN FURNACE
With John H. King, county prosecutor, standing at her side, Dr. H. M. Brundage threw the bodies into the fire and watched them burn.

The furnace fire was brought to approximately the same heat as that in which the pastor's wife was found. The Guinea pigs were allowed to burn until their flesh resembled that of the furnace victim and they were removed to Dr. Brundage's laboratory for further study.

It was a silent little group that huddled about the large heating furnace which had swallowed up the pastor's wife.

Hardly a word was spoken while the two small bodies sizzled and smoked on the red hot coals as Mrs. Sheatsley must have done a week before.

Rev. V. Sheatsley, husband of the furnace victim, and his four children, were not at home when the experiment was performed. They were still in Paris, Ohio, with relatives and will not return to the parsonage until later in the week.

Dr. Brundage watched the action of the fire upon the Guinea pigs in silence, apparently intent upon the scientific parallel which he will have to draw in attempting to aid authorities solve one of the most perplexing mysteries in history.

HEATS IN DOUBT
"Our next step is to put the vital organs of these pigs under the microscope along side similar specimens from Mrs. Sheatsley's body," the pathologist said.

They may find important similarities and find nothing. It may be two weeks before we are ready to report to the prosecutor.

King said that if Dr. Brundage's report indicated Mrs. Sheatsley was dead before she was thrown into the furnace, it would only be further support for his contention that she was murdered. The pastor maintains that his wife committed suicide by crawling into the furnace.

But since the report of the chemist that Mrs. Sheatsley may have been strangled, the pastor is virtually alone in his belief that she ended her own life.

Another discovery which drew the prosecutor's interest was the finding of matter on the outside of the kitchen door similar to that found on the collar shirt which the door was a dark stain.

Investigators also discovered a heavy cloth resembling a table cover which was rolled up and stuffed into an upstairs closet. Several dark stains were found on the cloth and importance was attached to them by the searchers.

Due to its wrapped and muffled condition when inspection of the rest of the house revealed nothing but neatness in the manner in which clothing and linen was put away.

Stained spots on a small rug in front of the kitchen door, a small cloth appearing to be an iron holder and an old pair of trousers, all bearing dark stains, were found and taken by the prosecutor and his aides for examination.

The hair tilled bottles of carbolic acid which was missing from the parsonage immediately after Mrs. Sheatsley's death had been returned to its place on the bathroom shelf, king found in searching the house today.

"This is merely further proof of the absurdity of the theory that Mrs. Sheatsley committed suicide," King said.

The Rev. Dr. Swank will deliver a short sermon ending with prayer and benediction.

The funeral cortege moved to the cemetery over the same route as that of President Harding.

Only homes accorded Mrs. Harding was a escort of 23 soldiers of the United States army.

The guard at the Harding tomb was an American Guard.

Taps were sounded.

The life of the Hardings will be ended.

EBERT ROLE IS OVERPLAYED

Enthusiasm Lacking in Coming German Election

FOOD IS REAL ISSUE

Kaiser's Letter to Buelow is Recalled

BERLIN. — (Special). — The German government which has set Dec. 7 as the next election day is still lacking in attractive slogans to stimulate enthusiasm.

There would not be difficult to find if an endeavor were made to give a straightforward and conclusive answer to the question of whether the German people wish to turn away definitely from a military monarchy and settle down to the noblest aims of civilized humanity as a democratic state—a great, free nation, restricted in its sovereign power only by self-determination and the rights of other nations.

Nothing positive is to be obtained from theoretical disputes and vague phraseology. The imagination of the masses reacts only to nourishing food and strong tonics.

ROLE OF EBERT

The role President Ebert will play in the elections is being greatly exaggerated. This socialist who has clung to power for six years without ever having been elected by the people is so desperately afraid of losing his office that he has made a political alliance with General von Seeckt in the hope of mollifying the nationalists whom he fears and who despise him.

His much talked of "manifesto" has not appeared at this writing, having been delayed by the president's cowardice.

Two letters which were published recently show more plainly than the sharpest criticism the truth about the personality and qualities of character of the last Kaiser. When in August, 1905, Chancellor Buelow tendered his resignation because the Kaiser, without his knowledge, had meddled in international politics, Wilhelm wrote:

"To be treated thus by my best and most intimate friend has been such a blow that I fear a serious nerve attack. For your sake and because the Fatherland demanded it, I landed in Tangier and despite the fact that my lame arm prevents my being a good rider, I rode a strange horse courageously among the Spanish anarchists to benefit your policy."

"Now you want to throw me over because the situation is too serious. But Buelow, I really never deserved that. You are a hundred times more valuable to me and to the Fatherland than all the treaties in the world."

After his defeat in the world war, the Kaiser will no longer live. Think of my poor wife and children!"

EMPEROR WHINES

In the whining tones of a hysterical woman, the Emperor-Rex who, before a frightened and trembling world played the part of the most mighty war lord and during the war, demanded gratitude for having ridden the horse which was broken in, for the Sultan of Morocco thru streets guarded by crowds of policemen.

Three years later, he dismissed this same Buelow like a Lackey and boasted later "here, on this spot, I kicked the scoundrel out!"

After his defeat in the world war, a vain, morally blind psychopath, he fled to Holland because he "no longer felt safe" at his headquarters.

Since then the republican government has sent him almost forty million gold marks and eighty-five furniture vans laden with jewels, gold, silver and other valuables, and has granted him the possession of dozens of castles and country and town residences.

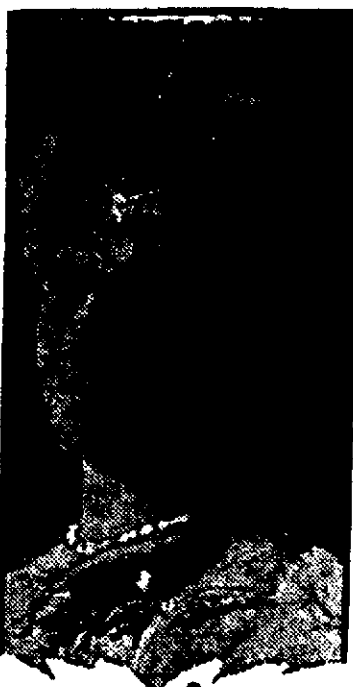

Since January, 1924, it had paid him besides, 50,000 gold marks monthly. This was not enough for his insatiable appetite. He demanded also an estate of 40,000 acres—which caused the agreement to be frustrated.

The government should show the Wilhelm to the people. In the towns where every tenth child is underfed, and where workmen must labor a whole week for thirty or forty marks, the government should put to the people the question of whether they want to return to the monarchical institution which made such misery possible, or whether they will shape their own destiny by building up a new democratic republic.

FRANCE PLAYS PART

Just as it is trying to influence the elections thru Paris. If France does not claim a 25 per cent tax on imports, or, if France in return for concessions in the Franco-German commercial agreement, promises to evacuate the Ruhr zone by January, 1925, it is feared that the elections will be favorable to the government which fought such a state to pass. And with this as election propaganda, it is likely that

COMES BACK

Kathie Schratz, the actress, who for years was the most intimate friend of the late Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria had, has decided to return to her "public." She has just signed a contract to appear at a Vienna theatre this winter.

President Ebert will probably continue in his office for the seventh year.

Only those people who are properly informed about the past can speak a decisive word about the future.

LENIENCY ASKED

Anderson's Opponent Would Allow Him Home Christmas

WASHINGTON.—(By Associated Press).—A plea to allow William H. Anderson, former superintendent of the New York branch of the Anti-Saloon League, to spend Christmas undisturbed with his family before being re-arrested on four other charges pending against him, was issued by Captain W. H. Slayton, executive head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

In a statement issued upon the announcement that Anderson would be immediately arrested again as he leaves Sing Sing under parole, Capt. Slayton said that "it would be a Christian leniency on the part of the New York authorities if they would postpone re-arresting Anderson for a week and allow him to go to his home in Yonkers on Christmas eve when he is released from Sing Sing and by his appearance make the holidays just a little more cheerful for his family, which has remained loyal and which has suffered more than he."

NOT LEGAL RESIDENTS

CINCINNATI — Inasmuch as George Remus, "King of the Bootleggers" has been living in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., since last January and disclaims residence here, service of notice at his former home here is not sufficient to maintain a law suit in the courts against him, Judge Thomas H. Darby, of common pleas court held today.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Joint-Ease for Creaky Joints

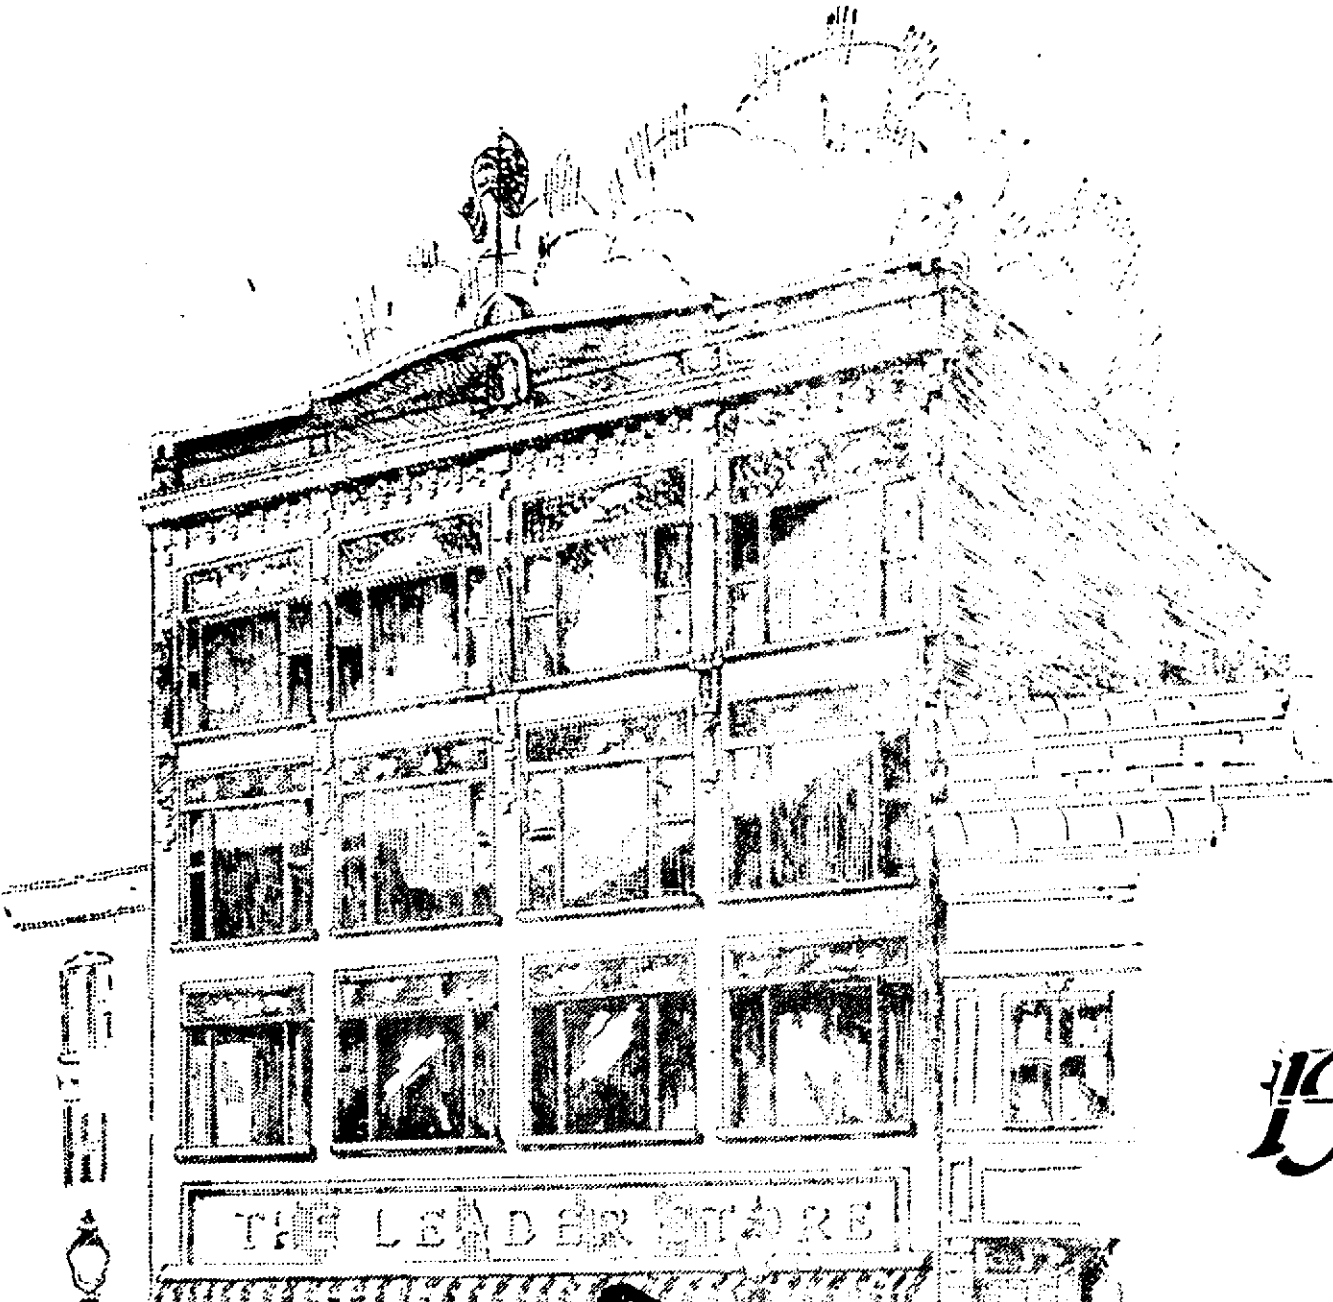

Just rub on the new application called Joint-Ease if you want to know what real joint comfort is. It's for stiff, swollen, or painful joints whether caused by rheumatism or not.

A few seconds' rubbing and it soaks right in through skin and flesh right down to ligament and bone.

It oils up and limbers up the joints, subdues the inflammation and reduces the swelling. Joint-Ease is the one great remedy for all joint troubles and Green's Public Drug Store, Argonne Drug Store, Hunter's Drug Store and other live druggists are dispensing it daily—a tube for 60 cents.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

A History of Progress in the Leader Store

Principles

CERTAIN guiding principles sponsored the naming of this store. To be "the leader" one must in truth, lead. And twenty years ago it was as it is today, our ambition to establish and to hold definite leadership in forwarding the right principles of retail selling.

We are determined to always lead in maintaining the confidence and trust of our patrons—in selling only the most reliable merchandise—and in giving evident value for all money we receive.

Thanks to these plain and sound principles, this store has been and will continue to be The Leader Store.

Just Holistic

The Leader Store ALWAYS IN THE LEAD

As you enter the store there greets you the large jewelry department and silverware section, trimmings for dresses and coats, silks, woollens and dress goods departments. On the other side of the elevator is the Notions and Designer Fashion Patterns. In the rear is the Women's and Men's Shoe department. In the center aisles are the counters of Neckwear, Hosiery, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Ribbons, Stationery and the famous ONE-CENT PROFIT TOILET GOODS department. On the other side is the Men's Clothing and Furnishing departments.

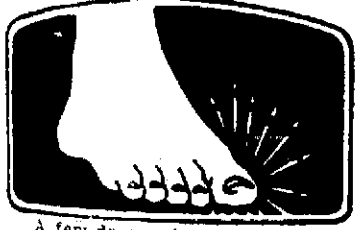

On either side are the stairways leading to the Basement, Lima's most complete Housefurnishing Dept.—where TOLLAND now reigns. Come and bring the children—you'll all enjoy it.

INGROWN NAIL Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so tenders the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

More Regulation The already heavily taxed and highly regulated auto driver appears to be in for more regulation. At least he will if either of the two proposals for the "welfare of society" is passed by the next general assembly.

No one has been able to explain satisfactorily why there is a 12 months open season on autoists each year, but such seems to be the case. Probably it is because he is about the most plentiful game on which to pounce, but at any rate various bodies and organizations take turns doing up new regulations, more taxes and more annoyances for him. While one is on the firing line, the reserves are back in their trenches preparing further offensives. They work while he drives and they work while he sleeps. There is no rest for the wicked auto driver.

This time the cards are all stacked to license him as a driver. Two plans are to be proposed, one by the Cleveland safety council, which would limit each of the species of the modest sum of $5, and the other by the organization of Ohio automobile clubs and which would be far less painful, taxing him only 50 cents.

The first plan is particularly dangerous. It provides for a license fee of $1 per driver and $4 for his examination. The secretary of state would be the commander of the forces to raid the pocketbooks of the autoists, the dollar going to the state, and the $4 would fall into the hands of those so fortunate as to be close enough to the powers to get appointments as examiners. It would mean fat jobs for the politicians at the expense of the heavily burdened auto driver.

The second plan and the one that appears the more sensible of the two provides for an application of the old basic law that every driver is innocent until proven guilty. It calls for a fee of 50 cents as a registration without examination, but the examination is provided for without further expense if certain conditions make it appear necessary. Such examination would be made by chiefs of police in cities and by sheriffs for those outside of municipalities. The secretary of state then would have final jurisdiction in the matter of issuing a license.

The auto club plan to be submitted to the legislature in brief contains the following provisions:

Application for a license to be made before July 1, 1935.

Secretary of State to supply blanks and instructions.

Applicant to set forth his name, age, physical description, previous licenses, if any, length of time he has been driving, record of all convictions for traffic offenses during previous two years and physical defects, if any.

Application to be signed under oath and if a minor, under 18, to be accompanied by parental consent.

Following compliance with the provisions as stated above, the license then shall be granted unless:

Applicant has a physical defect which experience shows would render him unfit.

Applicant has been convicted of speeding, careless driving, driving while intoxicated, failing to stop after an accident, illegally passing street car or driving an automobile without the owner's consent.

Applicant is inexperienced.

Provision is made for the examination for all those who fall into the three prohibitive classes.

This bill, its sponsors declare, has all the necessary teeth to regulate automobile traffic, and at the same time safeguards against unnecessary cost, unfair political treatment and red tape.

It can be seen, however, that such a bill would place the fate of automobile drivers practically at the mercy of two officials, as in Allen-co they would be the chief of police and sheriff. A man convicted of an offense could be hauled up, made to stand examination and his case reported to the secretary of state, the local officials would not have final say in the matter of granting or revoking a license, but it is obvious that the secretary of state necessarily would have to rely on their reports since he would be unable to investigate each separately. If speed is to be taken into consideration.

We can see no great good in the proposition. State and municipal laws already exist for doing practically everything the new law would provide and if enforced, they would be as great deterrents against recklessness as would the bunglesome license proposition which would fleece all drivers out of an additional fee and tend to set up a temptation toward "framing" and corruption which would be dangerous to the general public.

"Robinson Crusoe"

"Robinson Crusoe" continues as the world's best seller, tho it was first published 205 years ago. The Bible, of course, ranks first.

"Robinson Crusoe" is printed in 23 languages. Its tremendous popularity is sometimes explained by pointing out that it is in effect a history of civilization. Its strongest appeal, strangely enough, is to people who'd like to get away from civilization.

Sugar Eaters

About 10 pounds of sugar a year is now eaten by the average American in the form of candy. He consumes nearly seven additional pounds in ice cream and soft drinks.

The nation is eating around 100 pounds of sugar a year for every man, woman and child. The figure was 84 pounds before the war. Prohibition is the main reason, people trying to get from sugar the stimulant formerly bottled in bond. Doctors are a bit worried about the effect on health.

American Dyes

You have noticed that American-made dyes are steadily getting better. The color "ran" a few years ago. Now they are "fast." In 1914 America imported 90 per cent of its dyes. This year 98 per cent of our dyes are made in our own country.

It is an industry that has come to stay. The American chemist has no superior. German dyes used to excel, mainly because Germany specialized on dyes while we didn't. Intelligence has no international borders.

Idle rumors cause a lot of trouble, and so do idle roomers.

(The gums soft as the gums) so that after a reasonable period of physical culture, the gingivae of the mouth are in a state of health and vigor.

The dental profession has manifested considerable interest in the improvement in condition of the gingivae of the mouth. Of course Dr. Stillman doesn't call them gums. Being a dentist he calls them gingivae. He says that the gingivae are the soft tissue of the mouth and that they are the most important part of the mouth.

There is a tip for you. If you wish to keep your dental work in good condition, you must keep your gingivae in good condition. This is done by using a good toothbrush and by using a good toothpaste.

WHAT THE BABY DID FOR US
When Janet came, her brother there
Was ten years old and, oh, so wise!
I'm sure the house was in despair,
There were no fairies anywhere,
She'd ceased to croon her lullabies.
And age had come and swept away
The lovely charm of Christmas day.
With Peter Rabbit we were done,
To go where pirates buccaneered
Floppy and Mopsy long were gone.
The wooden horse he rode upon
With Mother Goose had disappeared.
For he had turned to rougher play,
And we had lost our Christmas day.
I could not interest him then
In tales of goblins, pixies, elves,
He wanted yarns of fighting men,
The books which Cooper used to pen
And found them standing on my shelves.
Then little Janet came to stay
And brought us back our Christmas day.
We have our Santa Claus once more,
Again we have our Christmas tree,
Now behind my library door,
A rag doll lies upon the floor,
And painted blocks marked A B C
Again we have those joys to claim
Which we had lost, till Janet came.

LIMA NEWS HEALTH SERVICE

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY GOOD FOR GINGIVAE

(The gums soft as the gums) so that after a reasonable period of physical culture, the gingivae of the mouth are in a state of health and vigor.

The dental profession has manifested considerable interest in the improvement in condition of the gingivae of the mouth. Of course Dr. Stillman doesn't call them gums. Being a dentist he calls them gingivae. He says that the gingivae are the soft tissue of the mouth and that they are the most important part of the mouth.

There is a tip for you. If you wish to keep your dental work in good condition, you must keep your gingivae in good condition. This is done by using a good toothbrush and by using a good toothpaste.

The nation is eating around 100 pounds of sugar a year for every man, woman and child. The figure was 84 pounds before the war. Prohibition is the main reason, people trying to get from sugar the stimulant formerly bottled in bond. Doctors are a bit worried about the effect on health.

CORRIGAN

by EDMUND SNELL

II—THE YELLOW BAND

Corrigan along his pony's reins over a post and stepped on to the veranda of Jacobson's bungalow. He knew, gray eyes took in the leanness of the interior decorations which lay behind the bright red sun blinds; sumptuous carpets, long chairs piled with cushions in bright leather covers; smooth walls, painted white and hung with trophies of the chase; a carved Moorish table with a silver box open to show a lining of sandalwood; a Turkish huddle of cushions; a great standard lamp with a shade of Japanese silk. The odor of a soft, sickly perfume assailed Corrigan's nostrils. He turned to where a native girl stood in a far corner, rolling cigarettes with a rapidity that took the Englishman's breath away. So absorbed was she in her occupation, that she did not notice the broad figure in white duck until his shadow, cast by a tusk of tropical sunlight, fell across her knees.

She started and looked up. She gathered cigarettes, tobacco and papers into a piece of sackcloth and thrust it behind her. One sledge and dropped to the floor at Corrigan's feet. He picked it up and examined it curiously. It was as firm almost as if it had been turned out by a machine. As he let it revolve between his great fingers he saw that the paper was of excellent quality, white except for a faint yellow ring at one end. He tapped it thoughtfully on his thumbnail and the girl rose suddenly to her feet—and snatched it from him.

She stood for a moment, her little form trembling with the fury of an enraged panther, then slipped suddenly thru an open doorway and was gone from his sight. A Chinese boy, in white coat with puttail tucked into a side pocket, appeared at a doorway. "Where's the Tuan-Besar?" demanded Corrigan curiously, in Malay.

The boy spread out his hands. "The Tuan-Besar eats the air," he explained apologetically. He turned abruptly on his heel and went slowly down the short flight of steps to where his pony waited restlessly, lashing at the morning flies with its unclipped tail. At the foot of the flight he paused.

"Tell him the Tuan Corrigan called," he said. "That's all."

He swung into the saddle and rode slowly toward the wattle fence which divided his estate from Jacobson's.

As he reached the barrier, he turned his pony's nose westward, toward the jungle where the stout posts had been badly removed and currently replaced, so that his neighbor's newly planted rubber vineyard more and more upon his own land. A dangerous look came into Corrigan's eyes. He a fortune strip of virgin jungle which still fringed the railway line, where monkeys chattered and fought in the branches. He caught a group of Jacobson's coolies red-handed and bore down on them boiling with righteous wrath. He sent them scattering in all directions, uttering guttural cries of mingled fear and anger. A bander who dozed under a red paper umbrella with an orange velvet lining, woke to find the planter towering over him.

"Get up, you swine!" shouted Corrigan.

The Chinaman scrambled to his feet.

But look that fence where I'll put you from one end of the Kaba to the other."

The man looked nervously over his shoulder, hesitating. Suddenly he caught the light in Corrigan's gray eyes. There was something in that light that told him that if he would be unwise, he would find himself under the paws of a lion.

He bowed and began shouting to the coolies to the effect of half-nude men standing in a semi-circle, waiting for the newcomer.

The coolies had been driven off by the light in Corrigan's eyes, and he was placidly waiting for the replacing of the fence when a voice came suddenly from the trees ten yards higher up the slope.

Corrigan wheeled round to face a tall man in khaki drill, with a face like yellow parchment, a broad fleshy nose, and thick lips surmounted by a wispy black mustache. Jacobson, his shoulders stooping over the head of his mount, regarded the intruder with a sardonic smile, like a bird of ill omen.

"Mr. Corrigan, I believe," he said again, in a smooth voice.

"Ah, yes," replied Corrigan, and turned his broad back to issue further instructions to Jacobson's men.

"Look here, Mr. Corrigan," he shouted the other. "Are you aware these are my men?"

Corrigan, satisfied that the wire was taut, looked back at the infuriated proprietor.

"Just as much as you are aware that this is my land, you're encroaching on, my friend," he replied calmly. "Anything to say?"

Jacobson urged his pony a couple paces toward his neighbor. "Clear off my estate," he com-round, ducked to avoid the descending stock, and sent Jacobson bounding from the saddle, his riderless beast, with stirrups dangling, plunging madly toward the sea-shore.

Jacobson rolled over on to his back, sprawling ridiculously. "You'll pay—for this, Corrigan!" he moaned.

"You'll have to get up pretty early in the morning if you hope to catch me napping," he assured him. He touched his pony's flanks, and took his tip, Mr. Jacobson. Don't monkey with my wire! Here's my hand—if you won't it, if you're a man—you'll take it while it offers; if you're a fool—you won't; but I fancy you'll live to be sorry for it."

Jacobson scrambled to his feet, knocking the dust from his breeches.

"I'll kill you, Corrigan!" he spat out venomously, his hand feeling for his hip pocket.

A single strand of wire showed between two stakes where the work of reconstruction was still in progress. Corrigan took it at a bound. He waved one hand aloft derisively, as Jacobson shot—and shot wide.

As he cantered thru his own acres, well weeded and set at regular intervals, he smiled strangely to himself.

Jacobson, white to the lips, paused at the door of his room to throw a silver box with a scandalous wall lining at a black girl who sat in a far corner of the veranda.

rolling white cigarette with a faint yellow band at one end.

It occurred to Corrigan, as he laded hot water over himself from an enormous earthenware jar, that the quarrel between himself and his neighbor had been, to say the least of it, ill-timed.

Any time of the day or night Zarlman and his posse of head hunters might swoop down upon the bungalows of these lonely whites, and he scarcely considered Jacobson big-hearted enough to bury the hatchet in an emergency. For every other reason but this, he felt profoundly thankful that he had brought the affair to a head.

This Jacobson deliberately had invaded his territory; he was on the fringe of a zone where agents of a hostile power heaped coals upon the ever-smouldering volcano of religious fanaticism; two long, weary miles of rubber-planted slopes stretched between him and the bungalow of his first assistant. He could not stomach the idea of an endless planting and re-planting of the disputed barrier. It was for these reasons that he discarded the habitual sarong and singlet he usually affected for his solitary evening meal, and put on riding breeches of cord and stout leather leggings. He resolved to put his case before Browning, the D. O. at Putatan, and get the matter straightened out once and for all.

An Intimate Story of Innermost Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

I had a little talk with Ruth Burke over the telephone today. I have never heard her voice sound so happy.

I wonder if you have also found out, Leslie, that people can seldom disguise their voices in ordinary everyday conversation. Instinctively they will drop into the tony cadences of unhappiness, or the pathetic hollowiness of grief that suits their mood.

When a person is happy his voice sounds full and resonant and there is a light in it that always strikes the ear with a pleasantness.

There, you didn't think I was as analytical as that, did you, dear? Perhaps I am learning some of it from you, but most of all I am learning it from Mrs. Atherton whose own voice changes almost from hour to hour with her moods, and from the people who come to me for positions. I can almost always tell whether they really need the position or not. It is easier to tell from their voices if they need the job than it is to tell if they are capable of filling them.

Ruth always had a pathetic minor tone in her voice, after Harry went away. I think it was from her that I first began to notice the difference that happiness or grief made in voices.

Ruth told me more in detail the same surprising news she wrote to you. It seems that Harry Ellington's sister was young enough to have been Harry's daughter. They did not have the same mother.

Strange, isn't it, that after all that Harry had done to Ruth, after he had almost broken her heart by being sure of her loyalty and forgiveness, so sure that he could leave to her as a kind of legacy this girl.

Ruth, of course, wants the girl to stay with her. Says that she is the sweetest young woman she has ever known. She would like to have her stay with her as her younger sister, but Zoe, that's the girl's name, is quite independent and wants to go for herself.

This one thing, which Harry Ellington did may offset some of the trouble he made for others. He seemed determined that his sister should have the best education possible and when she found her brother whom she had always thought rich, had left nothing, she tried to put this learning to some good use.

As soon as I found that she spoke French so well," Ruth said, "I immediately thought of Leslie and little Jack, for Leslie will have to be looking out for a governess for him very soon."

It rather made me smile to think of Jack who can as yet barely master the words "mother" and "daddy" learning French. I said something of this to Ruth and she replied seriously that every child should learn a foreign language before he learned his own.

She was quite convincing and I'm going over to her house tonight as you suggested and look the girl over. If I think she is all that Ruth thinks she is I will send her over to you with Mrs. Atherton. She might be a great help to you as companion and social secretary until our little daughter makes her appearance on the scene.

If You Are Thin, And Underweight

Nothing like Hittor-Phosphate, says Dr. Harrigan of New York, to make thin, delicate, nervous, discouraged men and women take on needed weight and quickly exhibit a nerve force that radiates health, energy and ambition.

It is known to be such a wonderful aid to frail and tired out people that any enterprising drug store, which has a large demand for it, is glad to supply Hittor-Phosphate.

The Money You Make

isn't half so important as the money you save. Millions of dollars are wasted on expensive, indigestible foods—foods that supply no nutriment because they are not digested. Shredded Wheat supplies the greatest amount of nutriment at the lowest cost and with the least tax on the digestion. Two of these little loaves of flavory baked whole wheat with hot milk and a little cream make a perfect meal. It is the most food for the least money.

Quality Is As Important As Price

When you buy furniture, it is well to remember that quality counts fully as much as low price. It is just as great a mistake to pay too little for anything as it is to pay too much. True value in furniture, for example, means that happy combination of enduring quality and moderate price which you find prevailing throughout our entire stock. If, therefore, you prize quality as well as low price, see the wonderful values we feature.

You May Have

Pretty teeth already—and yet not know it

Make this unique test. Remove the dingy film that's clouding your teeth. Beneath it, you will find, to your own surprise, those white and glistening teeth that you envy in others.

STRANGELY enough, thousands of people who go through life wishing and hoping for glistening teeth already have them, without ever realizing that they do.

This is the reason given:

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film. A film which absorbs discolorations and hides the natural color of your teeth.

Remove it and your teeth take on a new beauty. Maybe you have really beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film is charged too with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

So, besides loss of tooth beauty, film is a serious danger to healthy teeth. You must remove and constantly combat it. It is ever present, ever forming.

Old-time dentifrices were unable to combat it successfully. And tooth troubles were a serious problem.

New modern science has discovered a new way. A new-type tooth paste called Pepsodent that acts to curdle film, then harmlessly to remove it. No soap or chalk, no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Mail the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Or, buy a full size tube at any drugstore today. See what beauty lies beneath the film on your teeth.

FREE Mail this for 10-Day Tube to THE PEPSODENT COMPANY, Dept. 8, 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.
